Ford Shelby GT Drops Its Top

For 2008 Model Year

DEARBORN, June 25, 2007 - The magic duo of Ford Mustang and Carroll Shelby bring open-air excitement to the road for the 2008 model year as the Ford Shelby GT returns with a new convertible body style and a new standard color combination.

In 2007, Ford Division, Carroll Shelby and Ford Racing joined forces to create a retail version of The Hertz Corporation Shelby GT-H coupe called the Ford Shelby GT. Fewer than 6,000 2007 models were built and all were available only in Performance White or Black.

For 2008, the highly-coveted Shelby GT is available in a new paint combination of Vista Blue with Silver stripes and the choice of two body styles, coupe or convertible.

The 2008 models will sport 18-inch polished wheels with high-performance P235/50ZR18 BF Goodrich gForce tires to maximize the upgrades. Like all Mustang convertibles, each drop top will have a stylish light bar and supplemental bracing to give the car additional stiffness.

Approximately 2,300 Shelby GT coupes and convertibles will be built for model year 2008, available with manual or automatic transmission. Each car will feature an authentication plate on the center dashboard, as well as a matching tag under the hood for documentation in a forthcoming registry. Shelby Automobiles production is scheduled to begin in August 2007. Pricing will be announced as vehicles arrive at dealerships.

The Taurus is Back in 2008!

It replaces the Five Hundred sedan with a 2008 model featuring numerous upgrades — including the revived Taurus name.

The more refined Taurus, base priced at $23,995 for the SEL model, including destination and delivery, makes its way into dealerships this month. Starting price for the top-line Limited is $27,595. Its Taurus X sibling, a three-row, seven-passenger crossover, is set to arrive in dealerships by the end of July.

2008 F-450

DEARBORN, June 18, 2007 - While the Ford F-250 is the top seller for the first quarter of 2007, the all-new Ford F-450 has passed company expectations. Indeed the brawny F-450 is averaging less than 15 days on dealer lots while some competitive trucks sit for more than 100 days. Special models of the 2008 F-Series Super Duty are doing particularly well. At the end of April, Lariat sales were up 30 percent driven by King Ranch Lariat versions that were up an amazing 53 percent during the same period in 2006.

The 2008 Super Duty achieves a maximum 24,500 pounds of towing capacity - 8,000 pounds more than the nearest competitor - with payload increased to 6,120 pounds.

The 2008 Super Duty's increased capabilities are due to the new F-450 with its own unique chassis. Its combination of axle, powertrain and suspension enables greater towing capacity while offering a comfortable ride, and greater maneuverability and turning radius.
